SUNBURY, Pa.—Warren H. Wolfe paid 10 cents for a picture at an auction sale and took it home to replace its broken glass. He had $82 hidden in the frame.

Ralph R. Polk tore apart the 10-cent collection he had found and found $12.

LONDON—The date for the forthcoming British general elections has been set for November 14. It was announced by Premier Stanley Baldwin last week.

Parliament was to disband on October 25. Nomination day was set for November 1. The government expects to contest all but 20 of the 615 ridings.

The chief opposition to the election will come from the Labor party and in view of the critical situation in Europe an exceptionally heavy vote is expected.

The office of Speaker of the House of Commons has not yet been filled but it is almost certain that it will go to a French-Canadian. The choice will lie between George Beattie, a former Kanneristic riding Queen's, and E.R.C. Chevrel of Ottawa East. It is learned from authoritative circles.

Major C. H. Douglas, financial adviser to Alberta, will leave England for Alberta on November 1 or 2. It is announced by Premier Aberhart. Major Douglas is expected to be in Alberta about November 10. He will go into conference with the government to evolve a plan for Social Credit.

GENEVA—France notified the League of Nations on Monday that she has accepted economic sanctions against Italy. Thus Great Britain, in a drive to isolate Benito Mussolini since his alliance with Hitler, has been joined by France.

Both France and Britain now have announced their readiness to enforce the most powerful sanction—an economic boycott of Italy—by agreeing to buy nothing from it. France also can be expected to prohibit the importation to Italy of certain key products, especially those needed in the manufacture of armaments, munitions and implements of war.

The League "General Staff" of 62 nations meets today, Oct. 31, to set the date for application of economic sanctions.

Thirty-five countries have announced their support for the economic boycott, which also includes the lifting of any such ban to Ethiopia. Fourteen nations have agreed to enforce financial sanctions intended to cut off Italian cash and credits from abroad.

NEW RELIEF POLICY TO BE PUT INTO EFFECT

An order-in-council was passed on Monday of last week by the Alberta government paving the way for a change in the relief system under which persons on relief will receive a flat sum of money while municipalities will be invited to contribute possibly half the amount.

The premier stated that this was to be considered a real basic division.

Municipal councils have been circumscribed by the government in regard to the plan. Under it there would be no repayment of the amount contributed by the government but municipalities could require that recipients work out whatever share they put up.

Recreation A Vital Necessity

Ever since some authority discovered and told the world that every man should have a hobby, the dictum has been reiterated at intervals by more authorities with varying degrees of emphasis, sometimes with and sometimes without illustrations.

Whether uttered, however, with or without an ulterior motive the assertion is one which has a sound foundation in psychology and human experience. It is first cousin and as well founded as those more popularly known saying: "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Recreation is a valuable adjunct to work for man at all periods of his march from the cradle to the grave, in at least two stages to achieve the goal of life—happiness.

The word recreation itself gives a clue to the reason. Recreation, the making over again of the individual as he relaxes from the strain of work or from the cares and worries incident to it.

Unless a man is content to be a shiftless, he must refresh and re-create himself by seeking relaxation in some pursuit which, for the time, will lift him above the cares and worries incidental to earning his daily bread and providing for the needs of those dependent upon him. He needs some interest which will infuse rest into aching limbs or brush away the cobwebs from his mind.

In youth's diverse interest may take the form of athletics, mechanical activity and with a minority, some sedentary type of relaxation, but no matter what form it may take it is essential to the development of a sound, robust physique, that youth should have a hobby. It is apt to become morbid and unsatisfactorily introspective. Youth is normally a period of superabundant energy and this overflowing vivacity should be allowed to express itself in forms of healthy recreation, and it can be used as a step ladder to a fine vocation, it is that much more to the good.

History has many portraits of a hobby. History is full of stories of boys and young men who have made good in later life because they have been allowed to follow their bent and of many who have done so despite overwhelming obstacles and discouragements. By all means encourage the young man to take up some interest, apart from his daily work and chores.

And if a hobby is essential to youth it is vital to old age. There is no more pitiful sight than the old man whose physical powers have waned and who has no interest in life or in living. Such a man is a burden to himself and an incubus to his associates. He is misery personified and makes miserable those with whom he comes in daily contact.

But the old man who has given up his hobby, secondary to the life work which he has done, is prone to grasp these pains and penalties of advancing years. As his hobbies physically enfeebled he is able to turn his hand and his mind to a pursuit which daily grows in fascination, because it can be taken for granted, that the hobby which he has developed is some thing which he likes and in which, therefore, he can excel. Such a pursuit will go far toward prolonging life itself and will certainly give zest to the declining years. Old age will give way to sunshine and contentment will dispel mirthlessness.

But it is too late for the aged to develop a hobby after they have reached the serene and yellow. The old adage, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks" is true to the letter. There may be exceptions to this rule. That is one of the reasons why even during the crowded years of prime and middle life, a recreation is not only advisable but essential. It is an insurance policy for a contented and interesting old age.

Moreover the man who diversifies his interests beyond his life's vocation, is more likely to be successful in his work and to have a more active old age in which to further develop his hobby. It need not necessarily be something apart from his daily work. It may well be something related to it, in which event its pursuit will yield additional interest and perhaps more dividends in the task of making a living.

Firm Bicycle In Bavaria

Built In 1861 It Is Made Entirely Of Wood

Bavaria's first bicycle, built by the famous German sports instructor, Johann Dreitz, has been acquired by the Deutsches Museum at Munich. The bicycle is made entirely of wood, and was designed and built by Dreitz in 1864. Peasants, who had been asked to help in putting the wooden machine along the road around Munich, shouted "wood-hopper!" and often threw stones and crows at themselves. Dreitz only managed to escape German prejudice after he had built an indoor bicycling track. In appearance it resembles dwarfed wild oats.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl in Boston, who care nothing about her studies, nor time for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the middle of the night, her indulgent parents are shocked to find her family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this moment, she receives a telegram from an eccentric relative in Colorado who offers the girl a home what she wants, if she will go there.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. Nancy is shocked to find she must climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape. She is also shocked to find Tubbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Mattie, the girl's mother, who has come to get her. They ascend the hill, look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine's home. Mattie Adam tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack is away on a business trip, but while Luke's leg gets better, with Jack away, Nancy can't go to school, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library seems like a good scheme, and Nancy writes home to get her parents to send all the books they could find, so that she could induce others to let them have.

Nancy's parents and friends gave their hearty endorsement to the books, and a sizeable box arrived in due course. Father Adam painted a sign for the library, and the boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room a success.

Jack Nelson, Matthew Adam, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthews' parents, and there Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the snow, they get lost, and the bus full of school children, which was stalled across the road with its back wheel off the road, is crushed. Their car is wrecked, Jack and Nancy stay with the drivers, and do all the work for them. The men, including Jack, set out for help, and the party of children and adults are rescued. As a result of the exposure, Nancy's feet are severely swollen, and Jack suffers ill from pneumonia, but both of them recover.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XXI.

The days that followed etched new lines on Columbine's face, for only a few hours after her second telegram to Massachusetts Jack took an unexpected turn for the worse.

"I should wait," he answered. "If Jack were my own son, Miss Nelson, and I would wait, but I am not a son."

"Yes, but if the end comes, it will be soon; and since his parents could not reach him in time to see him, isn't it kinder, and wiser too, not to harrow them with the knowledge of how dark the prospects look just now? And he lives through the night the boy will probably recover.

To Help You AVOID MANY COLDS

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

He's putting up a magnificent fight; and every nurse and doctor in the place is fighting with him. I suppose you don't say that his condition isn't desperate, but somehow I've got the conviction that he'll make the grade."

Miss Columbine did not leave the room until night; and when she closed her eyes till morning, when a nurse appeared to say that Jack seemed to have turned the corner and his physician felt the worst was over. Not long after that, did she and baby have a little rest, and the doctor ordered a powder that brought sleep. It was almost noon when she heard a rap upon her door, and Matthew Adam entered the room.

"Did I wake you, Miss Columbine?"

"No; I was only snoring. How's everything now, Matt?"

The young man sat down on the bed, and grimed his hands.

"Jack's sleeping—naturally. Nancy isn't suffering this morning; and it looks as if the kids were coming through without a single amputation. That Oregon boy is telling me what happened to old Tom. Miss Columbine, I take off my hat to Jack and Nancy—and to some of those brave youngsters too."

"I guess the papers didn't exaggerate," said Jack.

"You're right—and not the same, I guess my guess is it's not some shock to those young relatives of yours when they read the story! How do you feel, it feels, Miss Columbine, to have the country regard us as heroic?"

"Well, it won't hurt either of 'em," responded the old lady. "They've got the New England common sense. It's I who's likely to wake up, Matthew. Think of the trouble we'd have if I took a boy to start out in the teeth of such a storm, especially when the driver had disappeared. And Nancy's been getting up as bad as ever—everybody's been as far to do what she did—Well, all I can say is that my pioneer mother would have been proud of her!"

Matt noted with pleasure that Miss Columbine's eyes were bright and brisk.

"You must go home today, Mattie," she said later. "It's been a comfort knowing you were here; but your father needs you, and I'll be back in a few days."

The young man smiled.

"I've had orders per telephone, to stay on duty a day longer. Mark's on duty in our Prairie Rock rigging plant. Mother's come down the track to see him home and incidentally, pick out a new car!

That's one good thing came out of that blizzard, Miss Columbine: we're practically forced to buy a decent car again," said Matt.

Mattie Adam added another reason why anything was good.

"Your bed's a perfect sight. I hope this praise you're gettin' won't turn your head."

Nancy smiled and replied: "I hope we open the pearly Aurora. And could you open a piano for our wonderful string beans?"

"Sure we could. Why don't you ask right on to stay to dinner, Mark Adam? You might as well as to sit there in the dark."

Mattie Adam laughed and said:

"Your mother deserves a modern car if anybody does. Is Mark all right again?"

"He'd come whether he was or not. They've got to take turns and we have to prove his getting out of bed!" All that kept Mark from joining Nancy.

Mark, however, was not the only one who enjoyed the girl's company.

"I think he's gettin' awful sweet on her," observed the young woman, so soberly that Nancy suppressed a smile.

"So'm I," said Mark, and grinned at Nancy.

Auron moved forward, her brown brows worried.

"I hope to goodness it won't make no trouble for you, Mark. Adam would break your mother's heart if anything was to come between you boys."

What are you laughin' about now, Nancy Nelson? It's no laughin' matter for two brothers to get sweet on the same girl."

"And she leaves us," Mark said tragically as Aurora fled. "In complete ignorance to the fate of these unfortunate Eltons! I'll look in on Jack this afternoon, Nancy. Will you let me take him some of this accumulation?"

"Do you if you want to bring them back. I'm saving every one of these absurdities to show my grandchildren. Jack's seen the papers, I suppose."

Mark nodded.

"He says he feels like Lindbergh! The last of those kids goes home today, Nancy. It's wonderful how well they seem to be doing."

"Isn't it? I was so awfully afraid for some of them. It makes me shudder just to remember how they suffered."

Is that cheering below the window? Hand me that compact, the window, Mark. I expect I look a sight."

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor if the medicine you are taking is safe. Ask him if it is in comparison with "Aspirin."

Remember "Aspirin" has been the most popular pain killer ever developed.

"Aspirin" largely changed medical practices.

Thousands of people have taken "Aspirin" in丸 for the relief of headache; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia. It is safe because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," more so-called "pain" remedies were often bad for the stomach; or the liver, or for the kidneys.

THOS. BISHOP JR. INJURED IN SHOOTING MISHAP

Thomas Bishop, 22 year of age of Three Hills, lies in the Holy Cross hospital suffering from bullet wounds in both legs as well as the result of an accident he suffered near Carbon.

The youth was reported to be progressing favorably on Monday. Dr. F. C. Clarke, the attending physician, reported that both wounds were clean, and the bullet had not struck either bone or muscle. The leg is the most important arteries. The bullet was said to have been accidentally fired by a companion while the two were shooting.—The Calgary Albertan.

SPEAKING OF PRINTING

There are some printing jobs which can be executed a lot cheaper in the larger city shops. These shops are equipped with more modern machinery and other machinery which the local printer can never hope to buy because his business is not large enough to merit it. But on the whole, there is a remarkable idea in the printing industry. Local business people will request the printing office for a price of one thousand forms of a certain kind which for arguments sake we shall say will cost six dollars. The customer places the order, a later date a stationary salesman comes along, sees the form and volunteers

Wesley, aged 20, was in disgrace, and his grandfather had been asked to take him in.

"I am your boy," said the old man kindly, "that you are in love with Miss Blah-de-Blah, the actress."

The youth struck an attitude. "I am sir," he said firmly, "and you're an actress, say nothing the act, it just isn't better, said in my present!"

Grandpa roared. "Anything against her? he chuckled. "Why, bless your heart, boy, I was in love with her too when I was your age."

the information that he can supply the same form for four dollars a thousand in five, the business person could be sure that the printer is not being honest. It is seldom asked for more than a couple of thousand on any job, and if larger figures are suggested the reply is: "A couple of thousand will just us a long time."—The DeMolay Mail.

ELECTION EXPENSES

OB. E. E. Barnes, B.D., Philo, Illinois, has been elected to the congressional seat. Success and defeat are a small part of it. Praise and censure may go hand in hand, high honor and base humiliation may frequently alternate. Rarely can these be accurately weighed mathematically, can they? None the less, the most popular would accept it. Not often have statistics been more eloquent than in a recent imported statement of a defeated candidate. Nor would it be difficult to find more detailed material to comfort the comes from the saving grace of humor in connection with such an experience. The statement follows:

"Lost 1349 hours sleep, thinking about it, and 1349 hours working at a whole lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated one foot, four pigs and five sheep to a county barbershop. Gave away two pairs of socks, four pairs of undershirts, twenty dollars cash and thirteen day patches. Kissed one hundred and twenty-six babies. Kindled thirteen kitchen fires. Put up four stoves. Walked 4,075 miles. Slept 1349 less and talked enough to make in point one thousand volumes. Attended sixteen revival meetings, and was baptised four different times by im-
